Where can we locate these elements?

And.. how can we connect these elements?

The number of interactions is very high... a common channel is needed

- A geographic map (the representation) helps us navigate, but it is not the actual landscape we walk on (the reality).
- Misinterpretations and misunderstandings are common.
- Our presuppositions can limit our perception.
- It's important to update our "maps" when "reality" changes or when we get new information.

Elements

Breaking the border → Agile network

- To be an entrepreneur, you need an ecosystem.
- Some elements depend on schools, but others depend on the socioeconomic environment.
- It's important to know whether we have an ecosystem or a representation of one.
- Understanding functioning ecosystems is important for implementing possible actions.

- Do you have a "complete ecosystem"?
 - If not, what elements you need? (finance, market)
 - Can you "increase" the influence of some elements?
